

Prayers Do Come True

Jennifer Vranizan Update -

SUBMITTED BY: DONNA KREITZBERG

Jennifer Vranizan is home from the hospital, having successfully completed her stem cell transplant. She is home resting, the procedure having pretty much wiped her out. But, with each day she is getting stronger and exhibiting more energy.

At the end of December Jennifer will have another PET scan and the doctors will determine the stage of her cancer. Back in June the doctors said she had 8 weeks to live. Now, as a result of everyone praying for her, and Jennifer's determination to live, the doctors are guardedly optimistic, saying that she is right on track in her now-amazing recovery.

The fundraisers that have been held for the Vranizan family have been very successful, raising lots of money. The money has relieved the immediate stress of paying all of their medical bills, allowing the family to concentrate on living each day and enjoying the time they have together. Tim Vranizan told me that he is awed by the support that everyone has shown, and he wants everyone to know how truly thankful the family is for all of the letters, cards, donations and prayers.

Jennifer and her family know they are blessed. They take each day as it comes, knowing that as bad as it is and has been, it is important to be thankful for the good that is in their lives.
